Further to last month’s mention of fly-tipping the council have heard that highways use the uncontaminated spoil to repair verges, saving public money on disposal at the same time. Monitoring is needed by everyone to ensure the soil used is clean.

Planning news includes the fact that the wind turbines on the Post Inn have been removed, the Council decided on a neutral view response to both the extension at Clifford House, Crockernwell and the ménage at Moorend, also in Crockernwell. Communication has continued between the Council and West Devon Borough Council regarding the unauthorized solar array on the land adjacent to the petrol station at Whiddon Down, the latest from WDBC;

“I formed the opinion that the array could be assimilated into its surroundings by the judicial planting of a [2m high] hedgerow in front of the (exposed) panels closest to the "Service Area", thereby allowing it to be considered favourably in line with planning policy.

Whilst on site I took a series of photographs and with them, discussed the development with Mr. Dulling, a planning officer for the north of the Borough. I have to say that the planning officer was of a similar opinion. Therefore, should an application not be submitted for determination, having endeavoured to negotiate with the landowner the planting of a hedgerow. Enforcement Notice proceedings would be considered as a method of ensuring that the array is assimilated into its surroundings. If it cannot be assimilated, we will in all probability require its removal.”

The Parish Council will monitor this situation closely.

The Traffic Order for the closure of Turnpike Road will be posted shortly in the Okehampton Times and at Okehampton library.

The Parish Lengthsman will be visiting in May, if you have any concerns regarding particular road problems, gullies, drainage etc please contact the Clerk who will compile a list.

The police have been actively dealing with speeding issues in Crockernwell and we look forward to a report for the May meeting.

The End of Year bank reconciliation was approved and signed.

The Parish website now has a ‘What’s On’ page, please do make use of this facility to promote your events, and to keep up to date with what is going on around you. Also the Community Notice-board is now installed at the Visitor Reception area at Castle Drogo, ideal for promoting local events to National Trust visitors.

Prints of the Commemorative Parish map will be available shortly, a perfect way to celebrate the area you love and a special year.

The next Council meeting is 7.30pm Monday 21 May at Whiddon Down.

Cancellation.

Drewsteignton Open Gardens have had to be cancelled until next year due to unforeseeable circumstances. However, the garden at Netherton Vine will be open for Morning Coffees and Afternoon Teas (marquee) on Sunday 1st July from 10.30 until 6.30 for the Church Repair Fund.

Rubbish Day Dilemma

There has been a spate of foxes going through black bin bags. These bags are left out far too long and the consequences are, split bags and debris all over the road, this can then lead to rats and other vermin.

Please be a little more thoughtful and only leave the bags out on the appropriate day.

THE LYCHGATES

Most people visiting the Drewsteignton Village Square on their daily business will by now be aware that new lychgates have recently been installed replacing a 19th century edition that were in a sad and sorry state of dilapidation. If you have time take a close and detailed look at the workmanship involved in their making. It really is in the tradition of Ecclesiastical furnishing of a very high order and far outweighs in quality their predecessors.

The two craftsmen responsible for their creation are, for the woodwork, Mr Philip Rose, a joiner some 30 years ago and who is now an extremely accomplished designer and furniture maker. Go to his web site (below) and view a wall unit of some size made in burr oak with contrasting brown oak trim. superb. Look at the thumbnails of his creations to see the variety of his work and the underlying imagination that creates the bespoke furniture both large and small. All with enormous attention to detail and finish.

The gates are embellished with wrought iron hangings, decorative panels and fleurs-de-lys. Simple; not so; genuine wrought iron (incidentally only reintroduced into this country since the last furnace of many ceased production in the ‘70s) is a difficult material to work and requires real and specific skills. Such a blacksmith is Mr Greg Abel who has owned and worked the 150 year old Morton Forge for over a decade. You require hand made nails, a fire irons set, or a pair of estate gates Greg will make them using traditional hot forging techniques in most of his work. A visit to the forge is an education in fine craftsmanship, material and atmosphere that hasn’t changed in centuries.

The Summer Migrants Return Along With More Rain!

It has been a poor month for many of our summer arrivals, especially for the swallows and house martins which rely on flies for food. I reported in the last Parish Post that I first saw a swallow in the village on the morning of the 26th March (a week earlier than last year) and occasional sightings through that week of a single bird whirring over the thatched roofs in the square, with a pair perching on telephone wires on the 31st March. The weather has been pretty unpleasant for the whole of the month and so they will have gone off to find better food supplies elsewhere. I saw my first house martins in Drewsteignton on the 21st April with four birds flying around the west end of the square, but again with food in short supply at the moment, sightings have been elusive.

As I write this today (Monday evening, 30th April), I can report that I saw my first swift this morning after dropping my girls off on the school bus. Rain and high winds greeted the bird back to the village as it flew over Churchgate and tried to return to one of my nest boxes. These are all taped up through the winter to deter the house sparrows from filling them with nest material and so I hastily unblocked a couple of boxes. This is a day earlier than last year but the identical date to my first sighting in 2010. What I have noticed in recent years is that the first sightings of the swifts seem to coincide with a downturn in weather and so having arrived back to the village, they find poor weather and a lack of airborne food. I hastily unblock the nest boxes to allow the swift’s access just as they vanish to find food in sunnier climes. This then leaves me to defend the open nest boxes from the sparrows until the good weather returns, and the bulk of the swifts reappear and occupy the boxes. I am delighted to report we have 6 more nest boxes up in the village this year, courtesy of a grant from the “Devon Bird watching and Preservation Society”, two of which are on Churchgate and four are on two thatched cottages to the west of the square.

Despite the mainly poor weather during the month, which I have just heard on the radio, has been the wettest April since accurate record’s began, which is over 100 years, we have had the odd good day, but as a farmer friend of mine from north of the A30 says its been “Misty moo”. I am informed this is a Somerset term for poor early morning weather! Thursday 26th April was one of those better days and from about 8am onwards, I could hear a cuckoo (my first one this year) calling from the valley between Veet Mill and Puddicombe. Cuckoo’s are also here only briefly as this brief poem illustrates, “The cuckoo arrives in April, he sings his song in May, they lay their eggs in the month of June and then they fly away”.

I normally stop feeding the garden birds during April most years but have continued this spring and have been amazed as to how many goldfinches and siskins come to eat the Niger seed. Greater spotted woodpeckers, nuthatches, blue tits, great tits and a couple of coal tits are always present on the peanuts and with greenfinches, chaffinches, house sparrows, robins, collared doves and dunnock’s feeding on the seed feeders, my garden has been full of birds.

Despite the inclement weather, I have been captivated by the bird song as birds sing to defend territories and attract mates with chiffchaff and blackcap song almost continually heard from hedgerows nearby. The blackbird singing well into dusk is also a joy and I have even seen a couple of bats flying in and out of my woodshed during the odd dry evenings. Nick Dixon

CHRIS RALPH

I would like to thank everyone in the area for the support that you have given my family and myself over the last few weeks. As many of you know, I lost my wonderful brother Chris (Ralphy) on the 30th March while we were playing football in the DCFA Veterans Cup Final. Although it was devastating to lose him I take some comfort in knowing that, apart from spending time with his family, Chris was happiest when playing football with his mates. He was a wonderful player and, though it pains me to say it, he was the best footballer in our family although my brother John might contest that. Ralphy was more than just a brother to me, he was my friend, my inspiration and my hero. I idolised him, as he was everything to everyone. If I could emulate any of his qualities in my life or be half the man he was, I know I would be a better person. So to everyone in the area, from Lorraine, Lucinda, Emily, Katie, Hannah, Matthew, my brother John, myself and our families - A VERY BIG THANK YOU!! for making this awful time much more bearable with your kind words and messages. It has shown us that there is love, compassion and decency in this world and one big local family. By the way we gave Chris a good send off, my head is still spinning!!!

My First Fencing Attempt

During our half term, Flora (my sister) and I attended an OCRA fencing day in Okehampton. OCRA stands for Okehampton Community and Recreation Association and they put on many sporting events for children in and around Okehampton, including visiting Chagford School. We knew quite a few others there, Phoebe and Alex Muir, Jacob Sherlock and Jasmine Stanbury who are all at or used to be at Chagford School.

Before we could start fencing, we had a lot of protective clothing to put on, including a chest plate, jackets, gloves and more. Next we had to choose a helmet that was the right size and slipped it on before getting a foil (sword).

We had to do many exercises to practice holding and lunging with the foil. After we had done that, we started fencing against each other and the tutor (nobody won against him).

We also tried ‘electric fencing’. It’s the same as fencing except that when you hit your opponent in the prime areas (chest, stomach and groin), it buzzes on the equipment. There are many wires attached to you but they are not in the way while you are fencing.

At the end of the one day session, he gave out prizes to all who attended, and there was a medal for the best fencer over all, which I won!! Flora was the best in her age group, and won a bag of Minstrels!

I really enjoyed the day and it was great to try a new sport!!

I also played in a charity football tournament in Exeter last weekend helping to raise funds for the Adam Standsfield foundation (he was an Exeter city player who died of cancer in 2010). Our West Exe Under 12’s team came last in our group, but we were playing boys and overall on the day, £1,700 was raised!!!!!!!

Police Notice

This is a message from your local Policing Team.

Residents are reminded to ensure that their unattended properties are left secure, i.e. garages, sheds, outbuildings, oil storage tanks and to secure any outside metal items. Be on your guard against people cold calling and offering to carry out tarmacing, paving, patio, fascias, soffits or other work. This can sometimes lead to a low standard of workmanship that carries a lack of guarantee if problems arise later on and the price quoted can very often increase once the work has finished. Do not accept offers of work from contractors at the door. Reputable tradesmen will give a central office number and allow you to contact them when you want work done.

Please advise any neighbours.

Thank you.

Please phone us with any information on 101 or email general.enquiries@devonandcornwall.pnn.police.uk
News from the Castle

As I write this there is just a week to go to the first of May yet, after a great early spring, it feels more like winter; with cold winds and icy rain. However, as is often the case for us, every cloud does have a silver lining, and the bad weather is helping to bring the visitors to our door as the moors and beaches become a less attractive proposition.

If you’ve been up to our Visitor Centre recently you will probably have seen a new notice board; which has been put up to the right of the main entrance, as you approach the building. This is yours and can be used by anyone living locally. So, if you have an event coming up, or you provide a service that others could make use of, or have any other information that you’d like others to see then please feel free to post it here. There is no charge for using this facility and you can get a key either from the Drewsteignton Post Office or by contacting Christine Gray at Castle Drogo (01647 434131).

This is a bit short but that’s it from me for this month.

I’d just like to finish by hoping you all have a great time at both the Teignton Fayre and the Jubilee Celebrations, it should be quite a week-end!
